

Bambi Papais

Bambi Papais was born and raised in Utah, and came to California in her early twenties. She loves California so much she decided this is where she wants to stay.

A self taught artist, Bambi has been sketching as far back as she can remember. She remembers coloring books being a very important thing - wondering who drew these pictures that she was coloring and thinking that she should be drawing these pictures instead. Later, Bambi took art classes at school, and even was offered a scholarship in commercial art. She participated in many watercolor workshops to perfect her skill, which is evident in her strong confident use of color, her bold compositions and endearing characters.

Though Bambi experimented at oils, acrylics, pen and pencil, she realized it was watercolor that captured her attention; the medium she kept coming back to. Her favorite subjects are flora and fauna. I love flowers, I can't get enough of the flowers; they amaze me; the way they are put together! Bambi explains with enthusiasm upon describing what she likes to paint most. She also likes to take serious subjects and paint them with a sense of humor. When looking closely at her paintings, one will often find frogs hiding in the leaves, sometimes they wear hats, though no two are ever alike.

When people can get a good feeling from looking at my work, when the painting can touch their heart, when they laugh out loud, then I've accomplished what I meant to do."
