About Marconi Barretto

It is in an objective and efficient form that the Brazilian entrepreneur Marconi Barretto defines the most precise and expressive techniques in the history of the visual arts. Marconi has lived in the United States for over two decades and as a reward for a successful and solid career he began an adventure in the photography world, a childhood dream coming to realization.

Born in the small city of Taipu in the northern Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Norte, the self-taught photographer always asked himself what separates a professional photographer from an amateur. The answer is the use of the correct techniques and equipment, along with natural born talent. It is with these factors, that Marconi captures images like no one else. With the objective to express what is felt in the soul, the photographer sees the combination of calmness and balance in landscapes, and printing them in frames capturing the most beautiful angles and lights in amazing compositions.

Photography on Lexan

Lexan is a clear plastic with special coating that is 250 times stronger than glass and 30 times stronger than acrylic. It maximizes the photo's clarity and crispness, lexan mounting creates an overall effect that's modern and dramatic.
