About Raphael Robic
Born in France in 1960.

Self-taught, Raphaël Robic began to paint at a very early age. Robic is greatly influenced by the landscape that surrounds him: marshes, the presqu îles of Vendée drying in the sun. He is also very influenced by the intense colors found in nature. Such colors as limpid and brilliant blues, lemon yellows, ochre mixed with intense touches of deep chocolate brown and sometimes black. Like all great colorists, Robic particularly likes the use of shadows and their various shades of grays.

While following the initial sketch, drawn with the palette knife, Robic mixes the color and applies it in real time. He uses a brushstroke that is precise, nervous, and dynamic in its application. He also either uses his fingertips, the side of a piece of cardboard, or the dripping technique. His art is created with great liberty of expression. His art is both soothing and energizing.

Lithograph on Paper

This printing technique uses a planographic process in which prints are pulled on a special press from a flat stone or metal surface. The surface has been chemically treated so that ink sticks only to the design areas, and is repelled by the non-image areas. Lithography was invented in Germany in 1798. The early history of lithography is dominated by great French artists such as Daumier and Delacroix, and later by Degas, Toulouse-Lautrec, Picasso, Braque and Miro.

Based on the principle that oil and water repel, a Lithograph is created when an artist produces an oil-based or pen image on a stone or piece of metal. This surface is then moistened and covered with an oil-based ink. The resulting chemical reaction between the oil and water drives away the ink on the surface except where the drawing was first done. Fine quality paper is then placed against the surface and a lithographic press is used to create the print. Modern technology and processes have provided artists with many unique methods with which to create magnificent lithographs. In the 1890s color lithography became enormously popular with French artists, Toulouse-Lautrec most notably of all, and by 1900 the medium in both color and monotone was an accepted part of printmaking, although France and the US have used it more than other countries. George Bellows, Alphonse Mucha, Pablo Picasso, Jasper Johns, David Hockney and Robert Rauschenberg are a few of the artists who have produced most of their prints in the medium.

As a special form of lithography, the Serilith process is sometimes used. Serilith are mixed media original prints created in a process where an artist uses the lithograph and serigraph process. The separations for both processes are hand drawn by the artist. The serilith technique is used primarily to create fine art limited print editions.
