About Alexander Borewko

Alexander Borewko was born in Minsk, Belarus in 1960. In 1982 Alexander successfully accomplished his studies in A. Hlebaw Minsk School of Art and 1987 Academy of Art Republic Belarus. He studied architecture and was engaged in restoration of Russian works of Art from the middle ages.

In the late 1990's he left Belarus and settled in Paris. There he was inspired by the work of the Late Impressionists.

In 1992 Alexander immigrated to Israel and he continues painting in watercolor and oil with rich textures.

Serigraph on Paper

Screen printing or Serigraphy is a printing technique that uses a woven mesh to support an ink blocking stencil. The attached stencil forms open areas of mesh that transfer ink as a sharp-edged image onto a substrate. A roller or squeegee is moved across the screen stencil forcing or pumping ink past the threads of the woven mesh in the open areas.

Credit is generally given to the artist Andy Warhol for popularizing screen printing identified as serigraphy, in the United States. Warhol is particularly identified with his 1962 depiction of actress Marilyn Monroe screen printed in garish colors.
